JUAN MARTINEZ — Onboard Expert

Juan Martinez is a Mexican ornithologist currently involved in several conservation projects. He coordinates an international team that is working on the reintroduction of the Socorro Dove, which is extinct in the wild, to its ancestral island in the Mexican Pacific. Juan also participates in ongoing surveys on the island of Cozumel in the Mexican Caribbean aiming to detect and estimate the current population size of the Cozumel Thrasher, the most critically endangered Mexican bird. In June 2004, he led a team of biologists that produced the first confirmed sighting of the species in the last ten years. Juan also enjoys the night sky and is an experienced stargazer. He'll happily share his love of the varied birds of the Sea of Cortez, as well as the night sky, with passengers.

While Clipper makes every effort to ensure the participation of the speaker listed, all are subject to substitution or cancellation without notice.

BAJA & SEA OF CORTEZ

Whale-Watching Expedition

DAY 1 Depart the U.S.A./La Paz, Baja California Sur, Mexico (Embark) Embark the Yorktown Clipper in La Paz on the eastern shore of the Baja Peninsula. You may explore this small, charming Mexican town at leisure before enjoying dinner on board.

The Yorktown Clipper departs tomorrow morning for the islands of the Sea of Cortez. During the next few days, watch for whales and other marine life with our experts who will also present interesting programs on the natural and cultural history of Mexico and the Sea of Cortez, as well as lead walks and hikes ashore to point out the area's diverse plants and wildlife.

DAY 2 La Paz/Punta Diablo Enjoy the early morning exploring La Paz, perhaps visiting the Misión de Nuestra Señora de La Paz, built in 1861. Depart La Paz in midmorning and sail to Punta Diablo, where you may swim, snorkel, and explore the white-sand beach.

DAY 3 Isla Coronado/Loreto Discovered by Francisco Ortega during a pearling expedition in 1633, Isla Coronado looks like one island, but is in fact a small volcanic island and a detached, low rocky islet. You'll have all morning to enjoy the unblemished beaches, shimmering sea, warm breezes, and an overhead sky so vivid it takes your breath away. Swim and snorkel in water so clear you can see the bottom a hundred feet below, or view the captivating rock formations created from long-ago volcanic eruptions.

Boobies abound in the Sea of Cortez.

Close encounters with the gray whales of Bahía Magdalena are common.

Early this afternoon, sail for Loreto, an unassuming, authentic Mexican village. The first European settlement in the Californias, Loreto was founded in 1697 by Jesuit priest and explorer Juan María Salvatierra with the establishment of La Misión de Nuestra Señora de Loreto. The town served as the Californias' secular and religious capital for 132 years.

You may explore the restored mission — the first in the Californias — with its carved stone walls, wood-beam ceiling, and primitive portraits of priests who have served here. You may also visit the Museo de las Californias, which chronicles the conquest of Baja California and contains many interesting artifacts, including a mission bell, religious art, and antique weapons.

Today's explorations will be capped with a Mexican fiesta and musical performance on board this evening.

DAY 4 Puerto Escondido (for Whale Watching in Bahía Magdalena) From our dock at Puerto Escondido, transfer to Bahía Magdalena on the Pacific side of the Baja Peninsula. Here, board local pangas to enjoy a day of whale watching.

Many gray whales migrate annually through this area to give birth and rear their young. These whales are famous not only for their size and number, but also for their enthusiastic encounters with humans. Most show no fear of people or boats; instead, they tend to exhibit a friendly, playful curiosity that's very rare for animals in their wild habitats. Pangas will allow you to interact with these mothers and their young; some may even invite you to touch their soft, rubbery skin. You'll find that they watch you as closely and intently as you watch them.

After your full-day encounters with the whales, return to the Yorktown Clipper, possibly for a late-afternoon siesta and a glorious sunset.

DAY 5 Isla Carmen Watch for whale species that inhabit the Sea of Cortez — pilot, blue, and sperm — as the Yorktown Clipper makes her way this morning to Isla Carmen,

Onboard experts le home to an endemic subspecies of miniature barrel cactus and the true elephant tree, Pachycormus. The ship's landing craft take you ashore, where you may join our onboard experts for a hike into the interior. Watch for tiny Costas hummingbirds, flashing jewel tones of blue, emerald, and magenta in the sunlight. Relax on the beach, explore the shoreline tidal pools, or enjoy a refreshing swim.

DAY 6 Isla San Francisco

Another morning of cruising allows more possible sightings of whales, dolphins, and sea lions as you make your way to Isla San Francisco. Like most of the other islands in the Sea of Cortez, Isla San Francisco is uninhabited and represents an irresistible natural laboratory. In addition to spotting birds such as yellow-footed gulls, sandpipers, and white-throated swifts that nest along holes in the cliffs, you may also see the fascinating cacti that thrive in this volcanic-rock and salt-flat environment. Snorkelers will want to keep a lookout for beautiful Cortez angelfish, which are endemic to the Sea of Cortez.

Copper Canyon has been compared in scope and grandeur to the Grand

Head walks ashore; here, through giant cardon cacti.

DAY 7 Los Islotes/Isla Espiritu Santo/La Paz

Begin the day with an excursion to Los Islotes, a group of islets just north of Isla Partida. Our ship's small size will give you a closer view of the various shipwrecks and sealion colonies scattered around the islets.

The afternoon takes you to Isla Espiritu Santo, considered by many experts to be the most pristine environment in the Sea of Cortez. Our landing craft whisk you ashore for exploration of this geologically unique island. You will have an opportunity to hike inland with our experts to view the many species of cacti, birds, and wildlife that have adapted to this dry environment; perhaps you'll see the island's famed black-tailed jackrabbits that are found nowhere else on Earth. You may also relax on the beach, or swim and snorkel in the beautiful, clear water in search of rare garden eels.

DAY 8 La Paz (Disembark)/Return to the U.S.A. Disembark the Yorktown Clipper after breakfast and transfer to the airport for your return flight home.

EXPERIENCE CLOSE-TO-HOME CRUISING®

— Aboard the Yachtlike Yorktown Clipper

Discover the natural history, beautiful scenery, and diverse wildlife of the all-but-deserted islands and bays of the Sea of Cortez aboard the 138-passenger Yorktown Clipper. Escorted by our onboard naturalists and other experts, you will explore islands virtually uninhabited by humans, but home to such a variety of plants and animals that naturalists have been moved to compare this area to the legendary Galapagos Islands. Walk on secluded beaches and see wild desert landscapes dotted with cacti. Enjoy close-up encounters with the legendary gray whales of Bahía Magdalena, as well as the resident pilot, fin, sperm, and blue whales of the Sea of Cortez. Swim and snorkel in some of the clearest, bluest waters imaginable. Large cruise ships are not permitted to visit the islands in these waters, 47 of which have been declared wildlife refuges by the Mexican government.
